Detailed Syllabus Information

Course Subtitle	British Economy during the Industrial Revolution
Language of the Course	English
Learning Methods	Listening and watching face-to-face/online class: Listening and watching a lecture, video, or demonstration, face-to-face or via online (e.g., attending a face-to-face lecture, watching an on-demand video) Discussion: Learning through question-and-answer interactions and exchanges of opinions among students and between students and the instructor (e.g., pair/group discussion, online chat, one-on-one guidance for writing an academic paper)
Course Objectives	Economics as an academic field was born in 18th-century Britain, and developed in reference to the European economies of the time. This lecture explores the economic history of the first industrial nation, Britain, on which the basic structure of economics was established.
Learning Goals	1	You will understand the development process of the British economy from a peripheral nation of Europe in 1700 to the workshop of the world in the mid-19th century. This will be conducive to better understanding of the early development of economics and the grand design of the modern world.
Requirements, Prerequisites	None.
